Q: How should I use networking sites in my job search? Which one is best to use?

A: LinkedIn is the site you should use for professional networking. It's a great research tool. Make sure that your profile is focused and matches your target position and your resume. Connect with your friends and associates. Link with at least 1 or 2 recruiters. Recruiters usually have the most connections. With LinkedIn's facility to let you see 3 levels removed from yourself, you will have access to the profiles of many more people when you do a search.

Career Insiders is a San Francisco woman-owned business.
